

that play

a solo macbeth

REVIEWS

Times Square Chronicle (T2C Online)

Editor's Pick
Suzanna Bowling
October 2012

Imagine "cliff notes" that were intelligent and humorous and you get That Play: A Solo Macbeth. Adapted with Heather Hill and performed by Tom Gualtieri, this version is like a Shakespeare Schoolhouse Rock. Mr. Gualtieri has a rubber face and expressions that make this production mischievous and entertaining. Performing all the roles, expect stage fights, mime, witches and the creepiest version of Lady Macbeth.

"If chance will have me king, why, chance may crown me" and T2C crowns Mr. Gualtieri as one of the best one-man shows of the season.

That Play at Stage Left Studio 214 West 39th 6th floor. Mon and Thursdays at 7:30